Hi, I've been investing for a few years, but my portfolio feels a bit scattered. I was wondering if you could help me analyze it and maybe optimize it for better returns.

Of course, Alex. I'd be happy to help. Could you give me a quick overview of your current portfolio — such as which sectors you're invested in, and your approximate allocation to each?

Sure. About 40% of my portfolio is in U.S. tech stocks — Apple, Microsoft, Nvidia, etc. Another 30% is in index funds like the S&P 500 ETF. I have 20% in bonds, and around 10% in cash.

Got it. So you're heavily tilted toward tech and large-cap equities. That's worked well recently, but it might increase your exposure to market volatility. What's your investment goal — long-term growth, income, or capital preservation?
